DEMOCRATIC COUNTY CONVENTION.

The Democracy of Stark county are requested to assemble on Saturday, July 14th, at 2 o'clock P. M., in the Agricultural room in the Court House, at Canton, for the purpose of appointing delegates to the State Convention, to be held at Columbus, July 25th, 1877.

JOHNSON SHERRICK,
Chairman.

The Turks seem to be gaining on the Montenegrins, whose position is regarded as critical.

It may be England and Austria may become united against Russia. Austria is quite hostile.

The French Assembly by 200 majority vote want of confidence in MacMahon's government. The vote being on Choiseul's order of the day, 363 to 153.

Gen. Grant on Tuesday attended a fête at Alexandria Palace, the Prince of Wales's residence, and in the evening a dinner given in honor of the Emperor and Empress of Brazil.

Jewish citizens are indignant over the refusal of the proprietors of the Grand Union Hotel at Saratoga, to accommodate Joseph Seligman, the well known banker of New York city. He wished to board there with his family through the season. It is Judge Hilton's order, who is executor of A. T. Stewart.

At Mauch Chunk and Pottsville, Pa., ten Molly Maguires take their last swing to-day. We believe all protest their innocence; all are comparatively young men; all married except one, Duffy, and will leave wives and young children. See in this paper a sketch of the murderers.

Late arrivals from the West say Sitting Bull is now between Wood mountains and Fort Walsh, with three hundred and fifty lodges. He intends to settle quietly on Canadian territory. He shows many trophies, including arms, wagons, and the complete outfit of Custer's party. He justifies hostilities on the ground of violation of the treaty respecting the Black Hills.

Stephen R. Rinkley was hanged at Newton, Ga., Friday, for the murder of his wife four years ago. His brother, a wealthy cotton broker of Memphis, has spent $30,000 in endeavoring to save him from the gallows, and Gov. Stone, of Mississippi, and Governors Porter and Brown, of Tennessee, together with Generals Forrest and Jackson, have written repeatedly to Gov. Colquitt praying for Executive clemency on the ground that the condemned was of unsound mind. But Gov. Colquitt declined to interfere, and Rinkley was hanged according to sentence.

New York, June 18.—James Brennan to-night attempted to assassinate Father John FitzHarris, a Catholic priest, while leaving his residence to minister to a dying man. Brennan attacked him with a knife, cutting him severely. Brennan was arrested and locked up. The cause of the affair is understood to be a disagreement upon money matters.

Manch Chunk, Pa., June 18.—There is a feeling of satisfaction and relief here over the action of the Board of Pardons in the cases of the Molly Maguires. Some fears are entertained that an attempt will be made to rescue the prisoners. Double guards have been placed at the jail and about town. The prisoners received the news from Harrisburg stoically.

Richmond, Va., June 19.—R. G. Mosby, a mail carrier, has been arrested by special agents for paroling from registered letters. Mosby is highly connected, and said to be a cousin of John S. Mosby. He was committed in default of $5,000 bail.

The owner of the boat, Marx Fisher, and James Oselet were fatally injured by falling into the grinder of the mill below the sluice way.

FATE OF THE MOLLY MAGUIRES.

The Terrible Work the Scaffold Must Do To-Day—Account of the Crimes to be Punished on the Gallows.

POTTSVILLE, June 19.—The general interest manifested in the execution of the Molly Maguires Thursday culminates here in a feeling of anxiety and excitement. All eyes seem to turn towards the county prison, a large and imposing building with a massive stone wall inclosure, situate on one of the many hills surrounding the town, in which the condemned men await their doom. Confined with them are a number of other Molliques, some undergoing long sentences as conspirators in plans to murder, happily frustrated, or accomplices after the fact to murders, and one other, like themselves, doomed to die, but whose case is in the Supreme Court undisposed of.

Discovery of the Molliques' Real Objects. Ever since James McFarlen, the Pinkerton detective, made his disclosures upon the witness stand of the horrible fact that there had existed for a number of years in the Anthracite coal region an oath-bound society, whose ostensible object was to protect the miners, but whose real object had been to obtain control of the industrial and political interests of that region by threats of violence which they showed themselves both willing and able to carry into effect, this community has felt that the punishment for the crimes committed by them was a matter upon which the very existence of the lives and properties of the citizens depended. When six men in the prime of life, four of them husbands and fathers can be sentenced and executed without arousing a general feeling of sympathy and pity it may be said that the community have no doubt of their guilt and that their guilt is of no ordinary kind.

The Five Murderers of Policeman Yost.

Five of the men, James Carroll, Hugh McGahan, James Boyle, James Roarity and Thos. Duffy, to be executed Thursday, were tried and convicted of the murder of policeman Yost, who was shot in the borough of Tamaqua, on the 6th of July, 1875, in the early morning, whilst extinguishing a street lamp. He survived his injuries several hours, but was unable to give any further clue to the murderers than that they were men from Carbon county whom he had seen at the house of James Carroll earlier in the night in which he had been shot. No arrests were made at the time, and the matter had almost died out of the public mind, which was filled with horror and almost despair, by five subsequent murders, as cruel, more daring and apparently as unfathomable.

Frank B. Gowen Appears Upon the Scene.

Whilst the general public was despairing and the criminals exulting, a man of untiring energy, great intelligence and command of vast means had determined to detect and exterminate the perpetrators of the four crimes which disgraced the anthracite coal region—that man, Mr. F. B. Gowen, President of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, had laid his plans with that shrewd Scotchman, Allen Pinkerton, and more than a year before Policeman Yost was shot they began to make the net which has since landed in the halls of Justice, more than thirty guilty Molly Maguires, seventeen of whom will be hanged; nor is this net yet empty, but the hope and belief is that it will drag in every living member of the Molly Maguire order whose names whom the crime of murder can prove.

Convicted Out of Their Own Mouths.

Policeman Yost had not been dead a month before the Pinkerton Agency was in possession of all the facts of the murder out of the mouths of four of the guilty parties and breaking off in an incomplete state the investigation into the crimes and criminals connected with the Molly Maguire organization prevented an immediate arrest of all those implicated. The story of the detection of these men by McFarlen is well known and has been given a world wide reputation by the admirable book on the "Molly Maguires" written by F. B. Dewees, of the bar of this county (J. B. Lippincott & Co. 1874).

Murders Planned in Cold Blood.

No murder more clearly illustrates the Molly Maguire method than that of Policeman Yost. Thomas Duffy, a Molly Maguire of the Tamaqua division, residing a few miles west of the town and employed as an engineer at one of the collieries, was in the habit of going to Tamaqua on pay and other festive days and drinking to excess, generally to the accompaniment of a row, an arrest and a sojourn in the lock-up on more than one occasion he fell into the hands of Policeman Yost, who was obliged to use force and his club to effect the arrest. These blows were recalled to Duffy sober by the wounds they left, and he determined to be avenged on the officer. Duffy complained to Carroll, who was Bodymaster or chief of the Tamaqua Division of Molly Maguires; the complaint was by the Division held to be well founded, and the perpetrator condemned to die. In accordance with Molly rules the deed was to be executed by strangers to the victim, and therefore Carroll called on James Roarity, Bodymaster of the Coal-dale Division of Molliques to furnish men to kill Yost, Carroll promising to return the favor when called upon. Roarity agreed at first to do the deed himself, with the aid of others from his division, stipulating for the payment to him of ten dollars to defray expenses, but a call for a similar service having been made on Roarity's division by Alexander Campbell, Bodymaster of the Summit Hill division of Molliques, Roarity proposed to Carroll that if the (Carroll) would furnish men to kill Campbell's man, John P. Jones, then he (Roarity) would see to it that men were sent from Campbell's division to kill Yost. This was agreed to all around, and the agreement faithfully carried out.

Kerrigan's Part in the Bloody Tragedy.

James Roarity, Hugh McGahan, and a man by the name of Mulhern were originally picked out for the Tamaqua "job," as it was called, but when James Kerrigan, who had been sent by Carroll to bring the men over and show them their victim, arrived at Campbell's, in Summit Hill, he found that James Boyle had been substituted for Mulhern, and at the last moment Roarity sent his pistol with a message that he could not be of the party on account of the serious sickness of his wife. Kerrigan directed McGahan and Boyle how to reach Carroll's house in Tamaqua, and after dark, on the 5th of July, 1875, joined them there, where they also found Thos. Duffy. The party spent the evening together drinking and discussing the work in hand. Kerrigan, about one o'clock, in the morning, took McGahan and Boyle to the place which had been selected by Duffy and Carroll as the best for the purpose, and hiding the assassins behind a tree, within a few yards from a lamp which it was Yost's duty to extinguish, Kerrigan withdrew a short distance to be in readiness to convey the men by back streets and unfrequented roads from the scene of murder towards their home; nor had he long to wait before two shots told him the deed had been attempted, and the words of the men informed him that it had been successfully completed. Kerrigan put his comrades on their way home by a back road, and when they lay down to sleep they congratulated themselves upon having made cover, meeting but one person, whom they had misled by a false story, but both that person and the falsehood they told him rose up in terrible judgment against them at their trial. The detective was at once put on the work of ferreting out the perpetrators of this crime, and before a month elapsed McGahan, Roarity, Carroll, Campbell and Kerrigan had been told him of the "clean job" that had been done and all the particulars of its doing.

The Thrilling Story of Detective McFarlen.

Kerrigan became a participant in the murder of Jno. P. Jones, at Lansford; and was arrested, but before his trial in February, 1876, he turned State's evidence, and disclosed all the facts connected with both murders. Before the authorities permitted the fact of Kerrigan's having turned informer to transpire, they placed his accomplices in both murders in the jails of the respective counties of Schuylkill and Carbon, in which the crimes had been committed. Carroll, McGahan, Boyle, Duffy and Roarity were put on trial in Schuylkill county, in May, 1876, and then it was that, for the first time, was heard that wonderfully thrilling story of the adventures and discoveries of McFarlen, the detective, during his more than two years' experience among the Molliques, he himself having been admitted into their society and introduced to the innermost secrets. But the first trial, after having lasted upwards of two weeks, and having nearly reached a conclusion, was brought to an untimely end by the death of one of the jurors empaneled in the case. The following July the case against the five men was again called, but this time Thos. Duffy elected to be tried separately, and the court proceeded to try the other four. After a lengthy trial, in which the District Attorney, Mr. Kaccherer, was assisted by Mr. Hughes, Mr. Gowen, Mr. Albright and Mr. C. Farquhar, and the prisoners defended by Mr. J. W. Ryan, Mr. Bartholomew and Mr. Kalbfus, a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree was reached. Shortly afterwards the case against Duffy was taken up and a like verdict reached. Motions for new trials, appeals to the Supreme Court and the Board of Pardons have left these verdicts unimpaired, and on Thursday the sentence passed upon them will be executed. Of the six active participants in the murder of Yost five have hung, and one by turning State's evidence has saved neck. Campbell, one of them, hanged for the murder of John P. Jones, in Carbon county, he never having been tried for the murder of Yost.

The Murderers of Sanger and Wren.

Thos. Munley, the sixth victim of the gallows on next Thursday, is the only one of the five murderers of Thomas Sanger and Wm. Wren who has as yet been brought to justice. Two of the others have since died violent deaths, and the other two are fugitives from justice. Of the five men who shot and killed Sanger and Wren at Raven's Run on Sept. 1, 1875, only one was known to them, and he, the sixth man, who had been appointed to shoot him. The expedition was against Sanger, a mine boss, who had rendered himself obnoxious to some Molly by discharging him from work. Wren attempted to interfere to save his friend and met a like fate. The terror which these men inspired may be imagined, when it is shown, as in the case of Sanger and Wren that men were shot in broad daylight in sight of their homes, and upwards of one hundred men and boys who were near the place waiting to go to the work, and the whole company of five assassins made good their escape into the woods and hills surrounding. Munley was arrested in consequence of McFarlen's disclosures nearly six months after the murders, recognized by some of the persons upon whom his savage fate had made an impression on that morning of the bloody transaction, tried, convicted and everything done by his able counsel, Mr. J. W. Ryan and Mr. Bartholomew, to arrest the terrible consequence which he must suffer for that morning's work.

The Six men who were near.

The six men who were near the place where Sanger and Wren were murdered, and who were near the place where the five assassins made good their escape into the woods and hills surrounding. ## STATE AND NEIGHBORHOOD.

Judge Adams called a special session of the grand jury at Mt. Vernon on Monday to take action in the recent murder case. The jury found an indictment of murder in the first degree on two counts. The District Court is now in session. Judges Kinney, of Ashland; Parsons, of Wooster, and Hunter, of Newark, are in attendance.

The body of a man was discovered at Bucyrus on Monday, in a piece of woods two miles south of that place. A bag containing hooks and other fishing material was found near the body, and a Swedish Testament bearing the names of Jennie Johnson and Jennie Wilson, written in the same language on the inside of the cover, was in his pocket.

Coshocton, O., June 19.—This afternoon about four o'clock, while James McCain, aged eleven years was bathing he got beyond his depth and was drowned. The body was recovered.

Mansfield, O., June 18.—John Gosser, of Attica, Ohio, was found dead in Hepler's ashery of that place yesterday morning. He had committed suicide by hanging. Intemperance is the supposed cause.

Cambridge, O., June 18.—The jury in the case of Eliza Newland, for the supposed murder of John Likes in the bridge here last winter, after being out about four hours returned a verdict of "Not guilty."

Rochester, Penn., June 18.—The body of a man apparently about forty years of age was found in the Ohio River near this place yesterday afternoon. It was dressed in a fine suit of black clothes. The name of J. P. Wallace was found on the pants lining but nothing else by which it could be identified. Coroner's verdict, found drowned.

Figus, O., June 18.—This evening at six o'clock, the spirit pipe running from O. Farrington & Co.'s distillery to their bonded warehouse was struck by lightning, the electric fluid running into the warehouse and setting it on fire. The building and contents, twelve barrels of highwines, were destroyed. Loss about $1,000.

Napoleon, O., June 18.—The following dispatch has been circulated and very generally signed here to-day, and to night it was forwarded to Hayes: "The feeling here is that in the removal of Captain Dowling the Civil Service rules will be violated, and that feeling is intensified by the fact that a wounded soldier is to be removed to give place to Alex. Reed, a man who knocked out three of his front teeth to avoid the draft."

Local News.

There are some prospects of an independent U. S. six gun battery of light artillery being organized in this city.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.—Otto N. Sprague and Ella Z. Crooks, Wm. N. Myers and Mary Kirk, Jacob Schneider and Mrs. Susanna Richards, Phillip Gouet and Frank Zimler, James Grimes and Sarah Thomas.

Any excuse better than none. A toper says he would be a temperance man in a minute if it wasn't for his wife. He knows she'd be lonesome if she hadn't something to jaw about and find fault with.

Our "cast iron" teutonic friend was again heard from on Saturday evening. He had a little difficulty with a tobacco sign, on north Poplar street that he mistook for a highwayman. The sign was not seriously injured.

HIGH SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT.—The commencement exercises of the Canton High School will take place on Thursday night of next week, June 28th. The following are the graduating class: Wm. H. Bucher, Thos. C. Prince, Charles R. Miller, Helen E. Bucher, Ada F. Benkin, Edna W. Dyer, Edith Holm, Cora A. Howel, Lillie J. Kaufman, Alice K. Lahm.

NOTICE.—On Tuesday night the 19th inst. the store of David Machamer, at Cairo, in Lake township, was entered by burglars and a small quantity of goods stolen, though the money drawer containing some $80 in change was untouched. Among the articles stolen was a large pocket book containing a number of notes on different parties, drawn in favor of Mr. Machamer. The public are warned not to negotiate for any notes so drawn without the personal consent of Mr. Machamer.

The G. A. Band spent three days at Wooster this week in attendance at the University Commencement. They also gave a concert at the Opera House at that place in the evening. The following complimentary notice we clip from the Wayne County Democrat:

"It may here be said that the Grand Army Band gave Wooster people an elevated opinion of Canton, for it must be a good town and an excellent class of people that will support such a Band. The members and the Cantonians who accompanied them, are gentlemen personally, as ours have found out by association with them since their arrival, and their coming here on this occasion will no doubt do much to cement neighborly sociability in the future."

ROBBERIES.—During Saturday and Sunday nights there were several attempts at burglary, some of which were successful. We learn of the following:

On Sunday night the boot and shoe shop of Henry Kemp, corner Cherry and 4th streets, was broken into and two new pairs of boots and a pair that had been left for repairs, were stolen.

The same evening the barber shop of Philip Redick, on east Tuscarawas street, was entered but nothing was stolen but an old razor.

On Saturday evening about eleven o'clock, Will Numan and his wife, on returning to their home on East Tuscarawas street, from the store, they noticed a light in the kitchen through the west window and upon opening the front door they were considerably startled by a loud crash. Upon investigation it was discovered that "midnight mechanics" had been operating. They had endeavored to enter the kitchen through the window on the east side. A table upon which some dishes, a castor etc., had been left, stood below the window, and in endeavoring to get over it the burglar shoved the cloth, over went the dishes and down the alley out of sight at a double quick went the burglar.
